

Sophie gave birth to our second daughter, Amelia. Amelia's early life was filled with hospital visits, and she was diagnosed with a rare condition called PIPO. It was through Continuing Care that we were referred to Zoe's Place.

At first, we feared the worst. The word hospice carried weight we weren't ready for, but Zoe's Place shattered every misconception. It's not just a care facility – it's a sanctuary. A second family, when our family needed it most.

Zoe's Place don't just support Amelia incredibly, they embrace Keira too – including her in sibling events, making her feel seen and valued. They have given us precious one-on-one time with Keira, something that is hard to come by when navigating complex care needs. Keira loves seeing pictures of Amelia at the hospice, this helps her feel involved and comforted that her sister is being well looked after.
